Which personal data do you collect and why?

To create an account, we ask you to provide your e-mail address and create a password. Your e-mail address is used to send you a verification e-mail. After you create an account you will be asked to set up a personal WiFi hotspot and to protect that hotspot with a password for security reasons. Please note that the network name of your WiFi hotspot will be publicly visible. The router will store your WiFi SSID (Service Set Identifier), the network name and the password in order to enable you to use the Ally App.

The Ally App allows you to create user profiles in order to enable various features per profile, such as among others parental controls. If you want to create user profiles, you are required to provide a name for each user; this can be a real name or a nickname. You will have the option to upload your photo and a photo for each of the other profiles that you have created. By uploading a photo, you represent that you are legally allowed to use the photo or that you have received express consent to use the photos.

We also collect certain data about the devices that are connected to your router. We do this so that you can see which devices are connected to the router. For each device, we store the MAC address (a unique identifier of a device) and the host name of the device. The host name is the default name of the device given by the manufacturer or the name given to the device by the owner of that device. We also collect information about when devices are connected or disconnected to the router, which allows you to see when devices are on- or offline. Furthermore, we collect the MAC address of your router, which allows us to uniquely link the router to you so that you can manage your devices and profiles and for our own reporting purposes. We may also collect your browser history (information about websites visited and online activity, including curfew settings if applicable), if you enable certain features. By using analytics, we may also collect your IP address, phone number, SIM, IMEI or MEID, Router ID, AVG Product license and identification numbers, geographic location based on GPS/WiFi communications network local information.

This data is used to improve the Ally App and your user experience.

If you decide to purchase one of the paid premium features of the Ally App, we will collect financial info (which includes credit, bank and consumer-specific financial information such as transaction data) in order to process your purchase and payment.

The Ally App offers you the possibility to block certain categories of websites for a profile. We therefore store your choices, in order to provide you this specific feature.

We will treat all personal information, which is either provided to us or collected via the Ally App, in accordance with this Privacy and Cookie Policy. We also automatically collect information via the use of cookies and web beacons, such as your IP address and the time and duration of your visit.
